RELENTLESS. RELENTLESS.
RELENTLESS. RELENTLESS.

This was the year the worst happened.
We knew it was coming. We were prepared.

We had to be.

Losing the constitutional right to abortion was still heartbreaking – for patients, for providers, for the communities we serve.

But we've faced challenges before,
and we've never given up. We won't start now.

WE'RE RELENTLESS.

In a world without Roe v. Wade, our mission is more important than ever.

Planned Parenthood is more essential than ever.

We are still here, providing care at health centers across the country, getting education and unbiased information to millions, and building a movement to rebuild our rights, stronger and more equitable than before.

RELENTLESS

In the wake of the Supreme Court's Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization decision, states began banning abortion. The stories broke our hearts. Patients came to their appointments expecting to take a pill only to learn they were just days or even hours too far into their pregnancy and had to make plans to get that pill two states away. Young victims of abuse were forced to travel hundreds of miles to get abortion care. Women with wanted pregnancies were denied miscarriage care. Over and over, patient stories brought to life the harsh realities and barriers to care that have been erected over night.

Over the last few years, as we prepared to lose the federal constitutional right to abortion, we've been asking ourselves, "Who are we going to be?" Now we know.

Planned Parenthood is the health center staff pulling snacks out of their desks to give to patients so they have something to eat on their long drives across state lines. We are the voice on the other end of the phone line, moving mountains to find an appointment. We are the health centers opening doors every day to provide birth control, STI testing, cancer screenings. We are still the nation's largest sex educator, when sex education has never mattered more.

And we are the lawyers, the advocates, the fighters, who will not rest until every person has access to the sexual and reproductive care and education they need to be free. The road ahead will be long and difficult. There will be more heartbreak, but it will not break us. Every appointment kept, every patient seen, is a victory.

Planned Parenthood providers and staff will keep moving mountains: innovating new ways to serve patients and break down the barriers of structural racism that block access to care; teaching our communities how to care and advocate for themselves; and getting people the sexual and reproductive health information they need, wherever they are.

We have an opportunity to build a better, more equitable future – where all people have access to the care they need. It will take time and determination, but Planned Parenthood Federation of America (PPFA), Planned Parenthood affiliates, and 18 million Planned Parenthood supporters are up to the challenge. We are relentless.

As threats to abortion access loomed and the COVID-19 pandemic continued, providers at Planned Parenthood affiliates' health centers across the country were relentless. Abortion

In June, the Supreme Court overturned Roe v. Wade, removing federal protections for abortion rights. Some states moved quickly to put abortion bans into place, throwing patients and providers into a devastating new reality. Planned Parenthood has been preparing for this moment since 2017, and had plans in place to maximize the number of patients who could get care, and to get people information they needed as access to abortion changed rapidly.

To help patients seeking abortion care in a chaotic and confusing environment, affiliates expanded patient navigation services. Building on a successful pilot program in partnership with the National Abortion Federation and the National Network of Abortion Funds, affiliates across the country now have 70 navigators working to help the most vulnerable Planned Parenthood patients get the care they need.

In 21 states, Planned Parenthood patients can access medication abortion via telehealth – including site-to-site and direct-to-patient care. PPFA is focused on supporting affiliates in states with favorable policy environments to sustainably expand telehealth abortion access and increase their capacity as patients travel from states where abortion access is restricted.

In partnership with affiliates across 14 states, PPFA launched a campaign in the days following the leak of the Supreme Court’s Dobbs decision, reassuring patients and potential patients that Planned Parenthood was still there to provide sexual and reproductive care – including abortion, where legal. The ads reached more than 6.2 million people. An additional campaign on 68 college campuses reached 1.2 million students.

Research

Research is a critical pillar of the Planned Parenthood mission. Planned Parenthood uses research to drive innovation, improve standards of medical care, and break down barriers to increase access to sexual and reproductive health care.

In FY22, 30 affiliates participated in 69 studies on topics including:

- abortion care
- new tests and treatments for sexually transmitted infections
- impact of policies on health
- new methods or new ways to use existing methods of contraception
- gender affirming care
- telehealth

Planned Parenthood Federation of America and affiliate researchers authored 51 peer-reviewed publications that shared new findings with the sexual and reproductive health community.

STUDY HIGHLIGHT

In 2022, PPFA launched the Telehealth Expansion and Optimization Study, in partnership with five affiliates. This study explores direct-to-patient telehealth for STI and contraceptive care. We will use what we learn to ensure that telehealth delivers high quality care, meets patient needs, and improves access to care for patients regardless of where they live and who they are.

50 YEARS of Planned Parenthood® GLOBAL

For 50 years, Planned Parenthood Global has been backing the brave providers, educators, and advocates at the leading edge of a locally led, globally connected movement for sexual and reproductive health and rights.

- Planned Parenthood Global worked with more than 70 partners across nine focal countries in Latin America and sub-Saharan Africa.
- 770,000 people received sexual and reproductive health services and information.
- 12,000 advocates were trained by Planned Parenthood Global and our partners.
- Planned Parenthood Global and our partners' work brought about 76 legal and policy wins.

Planned Parenthood Global has renewed focus on building the capacity of grassroots partners pioneering innovative models for improving access to sexual and reproductive health information and services, including contraceptives and medication abortion.

- In Guatemala, a network of midwives in two rural regions formally adopted a telehealth model last year to bolster their existing in-person and in-community care.
- In Peru, a new chat service was launched to offer guidance, referrals, and support for both sexual and reproductive health self-care and connection to providers. Our service partner in Peru expanded its youth peer provider program to nine rural provinces, enabling young people in those provinces to have direct access to contraceptives as well as obtain referrals to the partner's clinics.
- In Kenya, PP Global founded and continues to support the Reproductive Health Network (RHN) – a nationwide network of gynecologists, obstetricians, nurses, and midwives trained to provide safe abortion care and also to advocate for full implementation of the country's abortion laws. The network now reaches 700 providers across 43 of 47 counties in the country, offering training and peer engagement to support high-quality and accessible service delivery. The network also maintains a popular telehealth service to provide 24-7 access to youth-friendly sexual and reproductive health information and referrals for care.

BUILDING A BETTER FUTURE

As we prepared for a new reality without the federal constitutional right to abortion, Planned Parenthood knew we would not win back our rights overnight. Building a future in which all people have control over their health and lives will require a deep, strong foundation. We have to smash the culture of shame and stigma that surround sexual and reproductive health, recruit new partners to the movement, and remind the world that we are fighting for freedom. We have to be relentless.

In the courts

- This year PPFA attorneys managed a docket of approximately 40 cases challenging abortion bans and other harmful restrictions on access to sexual and reproductive health and education.

Before the Supreme Court's Dobbs decision, in approximately two-thirds of those cases, abortion bans and other restrictions were blocked as a result of our litigation – some for many years – allowing people to access the care they needed. The legal team was prepared for Dobbs, and was able to quickly pivot the fight for abortion access to the state courts.

- Before the Dobbs decision, Texas was the front line of the fight for abortion access. PPFA attorneys, along with our partners, fought to block the state's bounty hunter six-week abortion ban, known as S.B. 8, in both federal and state court.
- This year also brought wins for sexual and reproductive health, including in Michigan, where the Court of Claims blocked the state's 1931 felony abortion law. This meant Michiganders could continue to access abortion, even after the Dobbs decision.

Alaska, where the court issued a preliminary injunction allowing advanced practice clinicians to provide medication abortion.

South Carolina, where the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed that the state's termination of Planned Parenthood health centers from the Medicaid program was unlawful – preserving Medicaid patients' access to family planning, sexually transmitted infection testing and treatment, cancer screenings, and other preventive services.

Bans Off Our Bodies

As we prepared for the Supreme Court's Dobbs decision, PPFA, alongside Planned Parenthood Action Fund and local Planned Parenthood organizations and partners across the country, launched the Bans Off Our Bodies campaign with...

- a website full of ways to get involved and fight back;
- signs, banners, shirts, and pins that showed up at marches and rallies across the country, on runways, red carpets, TV, and concerts; and
- numerous ads and videos, including an anchor video voiced by writer and actress Natasha Rothwell.

We also transcreated a Spanish version of the campaign, Basta de controlarnos.

It is impossible to measure the reach of Bans Off Our Bodies/ Basta de controlarnos. It was and continues to be everywhere.

Reaching new audiences

In 2021, PPFA launched its presence on TikTok, and has since gained 135K+ followers and millions of views – making it one of our most highly engaged channels.

PPFA also launched the TikTok Collective: A group of 13 TikTok creators who created dozens of posts about sexual and reproductive health and rights that got a total of 20 million views and 2.9 million engagements.

As part of our ongoing Be Seen campaign, PPFA launched:

TONE, two volumes of self-care playlists for Black women, Latinas, and non-binary folks, with tracks of affirmations and meditations by Black and Latinx creators and wellness leaders.

Signe, a transcreation of the Be Seen campaign for first generation Latinos, reaching more than 5 million people.

More than 1,300 companies of all sizes and industries joined Planned Parenthood as allies in the fight for sexual and reproductive health and rights, including through the Don't Ban Equality network led by PPFA and allies.

As artists, entertainers, and creators of all generations spoke out against abortion bans, Planned Parenthood coordinated 160+ young artists and creators to sign a statement of support for abortion access that was published as a full-page ad in The New York Times and promoted on signers' channels.
